Transport disadvantage is defined as a circumstance or set of circumstances that leaves those that are affected by it in a situation where they have difficulty in gaining access to conventional transport systems.

Eligibility

The CTP targets people whose access to mainstream transport services is limited by physical, social or geographical factors. The following criteria are used in determining eligibility for services:

- People whose physical health status renders them with a permanent or temporary mobility disability that leaves them unable to use conventional transport systems.
- People who live in villages of less than 500 people that do not have access to conventional transport systems.
- People who need to access community facilities and resources, which are not available within the hours when conventional public transport operates.
- People who meet the eligibility criteria and are also eligible for HACC services may be provided with assistance through the CTP if the HACC Program is unable to meet their needs.
